Urban Architect Designer

René Gonzalez

Hometown: Havana, Cuba
Virtual Studio: www.renegonzalezarchitect.com

René Gonzalez specializes in contemporary architecture and design. His focus is on projects that require a unique level of critical thinking and extraordinary attention to detail. His approach is always holistic, often engaging interiors and landscape, as well as architecture. For each project he researches innovative materials. He worked as Project Designer with architect Richard Meier on the Getty Museum and Center in Los Angeles, and later collaborated with Frank Israel during a time of extreme experimentation with materials and shapes. In the Miami community, René has collaborated with Mark Hampton in the Wolfsonian Museum, and Design Matters at the Museum of Contemporary Art. Also, he has worked to promote contemporary design and architecture to the general public, and has been involved in the restoration and urbanization of the Biscayne Corridor.
